

Web

Use a Web to show relationships between concepts and ideas.

A Web can be used to explore any style of music. The main concept or idea being explored is written in the center circle; details and specific characteristics are written individually in the circles that surround the center circle. In some cases, there may be offshoots of those ideas that can be shown in circles that extend further.

Students can work off of printouts of the webs in this PDF document. For some concepts and ideas, however, it may be advantageous for them to draw their own webs, adding circles as appropriate or needed.

From the following pages, select and print the graphic organizer(s) that best meet your teaching needs.
